

MEDICAL NUTRITION THERAPY:

Medical nutrition refers to nutrients specifically intended to treat certain diseases. Some conditions are treated with medication, but for some conditions; nutrition is the medication. Medical nutrition therapy refers to the practice of dietitians and physicians promoting health through dietary changes.

Medical Nutrition Formulas

For some conditions, the medical team may recommend a nutritional formula. Medical nutrition formulas used in healthcare are developed by teams of people backed by years of research. These formulas can be designed to promote general nutrition and to support growth, especially in pediatric patients. Some medical nutrition formulas are designed to meet the needs of individuals with specific medical conditions in which nutrition is a primary component.
